The Common, of several thou-and acres, haundaries of lots 1 and 4 The Common, of several thou and acres, forms the eastern boundaries of lots 1 and 4, affording to the purchasers a direct outlet for depast uring their working or dairy cattle, and giving to each proprietor the additional advantages of a right to abundance of fuel and timber for building purposes, when the supply from their own lands may become exhausted.

Most of these farms have an immense quantity of the original timber still standing, which is now of great value, and in daily demand for the Sydney market by the numerous boatmen who work on the river. The land, when cleared will therefore be new, possessing all its primitive qualities—no small consideration to the agriculturist or market gardener. Any amount of produce may be readily conveyed to slydney, by either the Parrameta or Lane Cove Rivers, or with drays by crossing in the punt at Bellam Point.

Lot 1 contains 27 acres, has a frontage to two government roads, and is bounded by the common, having an arm of the Lane Cove River running into it.

THE GOLD MANIA IN ENGLAND. THE advices brought by the Chusan were of more than ordinary importance. Two of the events of which these advices have apprised us would, under ordinary circumstances, have been deemed even here of some importance, and have occupied a considerable share of our attention: we refer to the change in the Ministry, and to the revival of the empire in France. As it is, the event which in magnitude and rises superior to all others, and gives birth to 'the most serious reflections in the minds of the colonists, is the effect which our gold fields were producing through-out the mother country, and which in its reaction upon Australian interests must lead to results more extraordinary than any we have heretofore witnessed. From March to December the arrivals from hese colonies were one continuous series of excitements. And the arrivals in December carried excitement to its climax. the public mind was ther wrought up to the highest pitch of wonder, astonishment, and admiration, respecting the more than fabulous disclosures of Australian treasure.

The crowning marvel was the effects of the report by the late Mr. BLANE to his co-proprietors of the Australian Agricultural Company. That Company had for many years been in a state of extreme sion. For a long time its profits did not admit of a dividend; and we remember that at one of its General Meetings, when the gloomy state of its affairs was laid before the proprietary, a shareholder declared with tears in hi eyes that, having staked his worldly all in the und-risking, he now found him-self a ruined man. We hope that genleman still lives, and has reaped his re ward from the glorious reverse by selling his stock at the enormous price it had reached. To what extent Mr. BLANE's etters exaggerated the truth, or whether he exaggerated at all, we know not At any rate it is certain that from the office he occupied, being the Deputy Governor of the Company, from the esteem in which he was generally held as a sober men of business, and from the circumstance of his having been an eyewitness of the things he wrote about, his reports were received, and naturally received, with implicit credit. It is equally certain that the reports which got abroad under the real or supposed anction of his name were such as might well justify exultation on the part of the Company, and an intense eagerness on the part of the public to speculate in its shares; but still we are astonished to find that the value of the Company's shares speedily ran up from nil to £300 each. "The chief excitement on the Stock Exchange to-day," says the Times, has been in connexion with the shares of the Australian Agricultural Com-

The shape in which Mr. BLANE's official revelations eventually came out before the wonder-stricken people of Dispatch, a paper whose circulation is said to be greater than that of any other Laglish journal except the Times. "At-tention," says the Dispatch of the 19th Destrongly directed to the fact that the gold fields extend over SIXTY THOUSAND SQUARE MILES; and that the Australian Agricultural Company's purchase of THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND AN IMMENSE FIELD OF GOLD!!!

And by a remarkable coincidence, during the first two weeks in December while these thrilling stories were going the round of the three kingdoms, six ships happened to arrive from Sydney in uccession, each freighted with thousands of ounces of gold, amounting in all to 141.747 ounces, worth more than half a nillion sterling. These six ships would of course be so many witnesses in Mr. BLANE's support, corroborating not only the reports he had really made, but all the exaggerations with which rumour had invested them. The reports themselves might have been received with degree of scepticism; but the veritable gold-bearing ships, one, two, three, four, five, six of them, coming one after another, silenced incredulity itself, and stamped both reports and exaggerations with the authority of truth.

Taking advantagement of this excitement, the I irectors of the Company had resolved on a bold stroke, and were forming a new company to which their Peel's Fiver gold field was to be sold for the incredible sum of £500,000, and it is the division of the shares in this new company among the proprietors that has caused the shares in the old one to run up to such an extraordinary amount. What will be the result when the real facts become known and it is discovered that if worth anything at all £10,000 or £12,000 is the probable value of the Quartz Vein which has created such an excitement? In a smaller degree the price given for the Australasian Gold Company's shares is deserving of notice, as showing that without knowing anything about a Company, persons may be found to give a premium of fou hundred per cent. for its shar s. Many months since Mr. HARDING, the Company's Superintendent, determined (upon what we have always considered insuffi the Colonial Directors have stopped operations, discharged their officers, and have sold their machinery, some twenty per cent. of the capital having been expended. The £2 shares of this Company are selling at £8! Then the mere announcement of the Great Nugget Company's shares appears to have value, although in Sydney they have een at a discount.

The effect of all this was to stimulate the rage for emigration beyond anything experienced before. It would also in evitably tend to attract to New South large proportion of the emigration which would otherwise have gone to Victoria. Port Jackson will soon be rowded with ships, not from Great Britain alone, but from all parts of the maritime world; and our good city be filled to overflowing with the thousands of immigrants they will bring out. It behoves our authorities to be better prepared than were the authorities of Melbourne.

Let us remember, that not only are all the ships that can be possibly pressed into the service now employed in the conveyance of passengers from England to Australia, but all the principal shipuilders in the kingdom are engaged i building new ships for the same service, and these ships of the first class, some of them exceeding in size and power any of which the mercantile navy of England could hitherto boast. Let us remember, too, that besides the two powerful companies now applying to that service the rapidity and regularity of steam navigation, there is a third, preparing, as fast as ample capital and well paid labour can prepare, not less than five first-rate steam ships, to ply on the route which will give to Sydney the new and inestimable advantage of being the first port of arrival and the last of with mingled pleasure and pain. While we cannot but rejoice in that accession of strength which the colony will derive from large additions to its population, we cannot think without anxiety of the bit-ter disappointment which awaits so many of our fellow-creatures, and of the privations and sufferings which will supplant the golden visions under which they are consolation, that the sufferings will not be of long duration, the colony being wide enough for all who may come to it, and well able to provide them with profitable employment and a comfortable

COOPER E. THE COMPORATION OF SYDNEY.

Mr. FISHER moved for, and obtained a rule nist, returnable on Wednesday next, cabring upon the Mayor and Aldermen and Councillors of the city of Sydney to show cause why an injunction and not issue to restrain them from proceeding with certain work now in progress for supplying the city with water, on account of the injury done to the applicant by the diversion of water from the Waterloo estate consequent upon these works. An injunction was granted by their Honors, pending argument of the rule, but on account of extent and importance of interests involved, leave was reserved for defendants to move on the earliest day possible for the dissolution of this injunction, and it was understood that the argument on the whole case would be taken on Saturday, 9th April, being the earliest day on which the full Court could sit.

The promissory note had been given, some years ago, for an advance from pisintiff to defendant; when it became due there was an arrangement to take out the amount in groceries, and goods to the extent of between £30 and £40 were supplied. These supplies were from a shop in George-attect, and the substantial question in this case was whether that shop and business belonged to defendant or to his daughter, since dead. It arose in this that shop and business belonged to defendant or to his daughter, since dead. It arose in this way,—plaintiff had lent, or declared that he had lent, upwards of £50 to the daughter. His case, therefore, was, that the supplies which he had had from the shop were in reality furnished by the daughter, and must be taken only in reduction of her debt, so that the claim upon the father's note was still wholly unpaid. The evidence upon this point was contradictory, and it was a mere question as to which story was best entitled to belief.

The jury found for the defendant.

WHYTE . MAILLER.

This was an action on promises by the shippers of goods against the ship master, for not rendering a due account, &c., of sales. The declaration alleged a delivery to defendant of large quantities of hay, cheese, and potatoes, valued altogether at £300, for sale at Melbourne, and a neglect on the part of detendant to render account after having effected such sale. There were also the ordinary counts for goods sold and delivered, money had and received, interest, and an account stated. Defendant had pleaded, as to first count, that the potatoes were rotten. For a second plea to the same count defendant alleged that the potatoes were not sold by him as in that count was stated. Thirdly, as to the r sidue of the goods, he alleged that after the sale of them he had rendered an account to the plaintiff. Fourthly, he pleaded that, except as to £130 he was never indebted to the plaintiff. Fourthly, he pleaded that, except as to £130 he was never indebted to the plaintiff, and as to this sum he pleaded a payment of £50, and a tender of £70. This payment and tender were admitted, but the other allegations in these pleas were traversed, and issue was joined upon the whole.

There was no controversy as to the quantity of goods shipped. There were 164 trusses (about 204 tons) of hay, 5 cwt. of cheese, and 14 tons of potatoes. These goods were shipped on board the Almeds, at Newcastle, in March, 1852; and it was sworn, both by the plaintiff and by those who acted for him in conducting the stiment, that they were all of good potatoes, there was an admission of plaintiff's charge of £15 .6s. 4d. for supplies to the vessel at Newcastle. It was alleged, however, that t'ere had been a sale of the goods, and a render of account sales in due course, defendant having done the beat he could to sell advantageously. The hay and cheese were sold by defendant to the Melbourne agents of Messrs. Buyers and Learmonth,—defendant having previously found, by enquiry, that he could not get from any one a better price than was offered by these partirs, who purchased at an advance of 25 per cent, on invoice prices, paying all expenses. The potatoes, however, had decayed so much that the authorities would not permit them to be landed. The account sales prepared by Messrs. Buyers and Learmonth, after making the allowances already mentioned, showed that plaintiff balance would only amount to a sum coverable by the sum (£130) admitted on the pleadings. Plaintiff disputed the equity of these charges, and the b.na fides of the sales in Melbourns.

His Hoxon told the jury that the first two issues had merely reference to the potatoes, first, whether they had be come had without

His Honon told the jury that the first two issues had merely reference to the portatoes, first, whether they had become bad without any negligence on the part of the defendant; and, secondly, whether def-indant had sold them. The third, and principal issue was, whether—the sale of the other goods being admitted—there had been any accounting for them into a mere settlement of sale, but the render of an account and of the proceeds. In effect, whether there was any greater liability by defendant than the £130 which was admitted. His Honor also directed the jury as counts.

THE FRENCH CONSULATE. — In the list of passengers by the General Hewett, we notice the name of M. Faramond, who for twelve years held the post of French Consul in Sylney. During that long period we never heard a complaint of, or a disrespectful word applied to, M. Faramond. In private society his company has always been sought, and his amiability and extensive information appreciated. In washing M. NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR. BRAIDWOOD.

Manch 17.—We have all been annoyed, and some have been put to a serious inconvenience, by another delay in our mail. To-day's post brings us only Monday's papers and letters, Tuesday's is still deficient. We are told there Tuesday's is still deficient. We are told there has been heavy rain down the country, and this is the explanation. What then! are we always to be subject to a delay when we have two or three days' rain? This is surely a pleasant prospect for the winter. Where does the blame ie? If the roads can be travelled over why does not the contractor perform his daty? If the roads are actually impassable, let the country districts unite as one man, and demand (I use the word advisedly), that they be put in proper repair. We cannot now get Tuesday's post before Sunday next, so that we might as well be living in Victoria. The district is becoming, nay, has already become, one of considerable importance: and some weighty interests are often at stake, depending more or less on the regularity of postal communication. me weighty

Some year or two ago I remember our good friends in Goulburn assembled in public meeting, once and again, to complain of the mail being an hour or two after time. I think it is high time that the people of Braidwood should assemble to protest against the ab-minable inconvenience continually occurring from the fact of mails not being delivered at all, at least not for some days after they are due. We owe it to the confractor on our own line to say that no olame attaches to him,—he is true to his time. I will take care in future faithfully to record every instance of delay, and will use

Has anything been done in reference to our communication with the Clyde? Surely this season must have given our wool-growers another lesson in this matter. High rates of carriage have been paid, delays have occurred on the road from many causes, among which, not the least, is, the unexplained and apparently unexplainable disease in cattle. In one team of ten bullocks no less than nine died. Of course carriage was not to be procurred at any price. Does not this circumstance add another to the many arguments already adduced in favour of an instant and determined movement in reference to this important matter? If we could really ascertsin the amount of money actually paid for carriage of goods between bydney and Braidwood, during the last welve months the sum would be positively frightful,—more frightful if we continue to pay their high rates when the means of redress are in our own hands. I was just going to call these rates exorbitant, but when the thousand and one casualities on the road, the expense of forage, &c., are taken into consideration, there is really not very much profit left to the carriers. I therefore do not complain so much of them, who of course are at perfect liberty to make the best bargain they can, as I complain of others who continue to pay these rates, when by a little effort on their parts this incubus on carriage have been paid, delays have cecurred on the road from many causes, among which, not the least, is, the unexplained and apparently unexplainable disease in cattle. hay, £5 10s. per ton; for the cheese, $d. per lb.; and for the potatoes, about 3s. or 4s. per cwt. It was further shown that hay of a similar quality had, about the same time, fetched £11 per ton in Melbourne, and potatoes brought £5 per ton. It was alleged that there was a similar difference in the price of cheese, but there was no evidence of its extent.

It appeared that there had been in reality a transfer of this matter to Mesers. Buyers and Learmonth when defendant came to Sydney, and the goods were thenceforth dealt with as a consignment from them on plaintiff's behalf. Besides admitting the shipment of the goods and the use of the seven bags of potatoes, there was an admission of plaintiff's charge of £15. fo. 44. for supplies to the vesse at Newcastle. March 15.—The diggings on this Creek have not as yet turned out so successful as was at first sniticipated. But a very general opinion prevails that a rich gold field will somer or later be discovered in its vicinity. The Creek is a tributary of the Murrumbidgee, which river it joins about five or six mits from Gundagai. It is between thirty and forty miles in length, and for more than a third of the distance the land through which it passes has very much the appearance of the sple-did alluvial flats on the Murrumbidgee. The soil along its low banks is equal to any that I have ever soen, and the country adjacent is thinly timbered and covered with rich and luxuriant pasturage. The upper part of the Creek however have a very different appearance. Its ades are very steep and rugged, and with the bed form alistost an acute angle. It contains a large volume of water, which runs with great force over the immense masses of granite and schistose rocks which abound both in the bed of the creek and the slopes of the high mountains on each side. Altogether its general appearance is more that of a wild and preclutious ravine than an ordinary creek, such as might be imagined by persons who have not seen it. There is a remarkable scaroity of quarts and other rocks, the presence of which is invariably looked for by the geological point of view, are anything but favourable; and, so far as mining operations have as yet been carried on, it does not appear that a very great amount of gold will be raised in this locality. The diggings, which extend for 12 miles up the creek, are confined exclusively to the bed, the banks being too steep and the earth too prous to retain gold in sufficient quantities so as to admit of dry diggings being carried on successfully. I have inspected and the earth too porous to retain gold in suf-ficient quentities so as to admit of dry disgings being carried on successfully. I have inspected meany every claim at present being operated upon, and the reports which I have received from many of their owners are by no means favourable. A large number of persons have visited the creek, both going to and coming from the Ovens; but, after giving it a trial of from the Ovens; but, after giving it a trial of a week or ten days, they have generally speaking abandoned it in disgust. A few, however, of this cleas who have paid their license fees have determined to remain until the end of the month, when they will betake themselves either to Sydney or to the Victoria diggings. In fact it appears to be the prevailing impression that the creek will be aimost entirely deserted after the end of the current month.

I am not disposed to fall in with this consists.

deserted after the end of the current month.

I am not disposed to fall in with this opinion, more especially as it is well known that there are two or three parties doing very well, and I believe the majority can at least make wages. One party of five or six, who have cut a race between thirty and forty yards long, told methey were making about ten ounces a-day. Their claim is situate near the junction of a small creek, the characteristics of which are received a miliar to those of the Adelence. The small creek, the characteristics of which are precisely smilar to those of the Adelong. The junction is regarded as the centre of operations, the richest diggings being principally in its immediate vicinity. Although this is the broadest part of the creek, the atream is easily broadest part of the creek, the stream is easily turned by means of a race, owing to the number of large rocks that impede its course, forming, as they do, a series of small channels, which require but little labour to cut off entirely. As the stream is, generally speaking, very narrow, and the soil very soft, the system of cutting races has got into general use, as also that of forming shoots, and working with long-tonssfinatead of the ordinary cradle. Some of those who have systematically persevered with these appliances have made some very hand-ome profits in a comparatively short space of time. I heard of two parties, of four or five each, who have been getting, on the average, shout seven ounces a day, for upwards of a fortnight. There are also others making four or five ounces a day, and last week a party of three took out two pounds weight of the precious metal. These, however, are very rare in stances of success at these diggings; and, as I have already implied, by far the greater number are not making more than wages, while many are doing nothing at all.

On the whole, I think it would be premature to average and section with everything the section of the precious contents. turned by means of a race, owing to the nun mising in the outset, yet who can conjecture what may be the result when thoroughly developed by a large and vigorous population. Should the bed claims turn out a failure, many parties entertain a confident opinion that nich dry diggings will be discovered in the gullies and flats adjacent. From what I have seen I think there is considerable foundation for his impression. It is commonly believed that the Government have been too premature in exacting the usual list creek, but also in its tributaries. I fail commonly believed that the Government have been too premature in exacting the usual license fee before the place had been thoroughly prospected and tried. I have heard a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed with reference to this step, more especially as it has induced hundreds to leave the diggings, and materially restricted prospecting operations. There are still large numbers of people constantly arriving, but they no sooner get on the diggings than they prepare to make their departure—in nine cases out of ten for the Ovens or Bendigo. People from Sydney, or claewhere, bound for the Victoria gold fields are induced to pay the Adelong diggings a visit for two reasons—first, because they are only thirty miles from where you turn off on the Port Phillip Road; and, secondly, because they are very much puffed

March, 13, 1863. We have at last been avoured with rain, and in such quantity that our creeks and gullies have been all floods, much to the satisfaction of all concerned. The holes made by the min-rs last winter in the gully, known as "Little Bendigo" (hithers very imperfectly worked), are now full of water, affording every facility for this part of the diggings being worked to advantage, and from the large quantity of gold procured at this place last year, I have every reason to believe that much remains for the benefit of those who choose to employ themselves in this gully.

The parties mentioned in a previous letter se continue to do well, corroborating, to a certain extent, my previous opinion as to the richams of this place; and, from the fact of the range on either side descending romediately into the creek, and the quality of the gold hithers found, there cannot, I think, be any doubt but some very weighty nuggets remain to be discovered, and that, on a carreful examination, gold will not only be found in abundance in this creek, but also in its tributaries. I fully anticipate that before the lapse of three months this creek will be as much sought for as it has hitherto been neglected.

I believe about forty licenses have been issued for the current month.

SUPPLY OF WATER FOR THE CITY. SUPPLY OF WATER FOR THE CITY.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.
GENTLIMEN,— I am what is called a "New Chum," and in this early stage of my colonial career any observations I may venture to make may be considered presumptuous. Circumstances have, however, occurred affecting my domestic comfort which will justify me in asking a few questions.

A few days are a mablic notice in the papers.

domestic comfort which will justify me in saking a few questions.

A few days ago a public notice in the paper, and a private notice received at my place of residence, raised apprehensions that we should be deprived of a first necessary of life in a country which Nature appears to have favoured beyond all others. We were for ten days on a hort allowance of water, and it was explained to me that the whole city is dependent for its supply on what may be collected in a swinsp in the vicinity. I was told that a project for bringing water from some distant place is at a stand still, and that a "bore" begun on high ground, on the top of a hill, makes no progress, and is discouraged by the sinister popness of the learned in such matters.

Can any one tell me if the sand strate on which the City stands have been bored through, and if not, for what reason?

Is it not highly probable that if the sand strate be traversed by a continuous shaft or bore in a well selected position, an abundant sheet of water percolating through the sand down to what is comparatively an impermeable bed, may be reached and brough to the surface in the manner of an Artesian spring? Is not worth the trial, and will not the City be open to reproach until it be done.

I would suggest that it be done not by boring with rigid rods, but by a modification of the Chinese method, successfully employed in the South of Europe, and the particulars of which may be obtained on reference to dispublished Annals of the French Ponts of Chansasters.

This mode of operating admits at once of a

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Heraid.
GESTERGIN,—I have observed in your paper of this day an advertisement from the newly-established Australian Joint Stock Bank, headed "Emigration Remittances," offering for sale their Drafts upon London, in sums of £5, which, they proceed to say, will be "acaileds a cash in any part of Great Britain."

I cannot but consider this statement as deserving of direct contradiction and exposure, as its effect must be to impose upon the ignorant class of persons who would be likely to purchase Drafts of this description, for the purpose of assisting their poor relatives at home, this colony.

So far from being cash in any part of Great Britain, one of these Drafts, as every mercantile man well knows, would not be negotiable anywhere out of London, except through a part of the state of t anywhere out of London, except through a country banker, who would transmit it to his agent in London, and after learning that it had been paid, would make a deduction for commission and postage. The local notes of the first-rate English or Scotch country banks can only be passed as cash in their own districts, and it is about to suppose that the paper of a new establishment, absolutely unknown, and issued at the other end of the world, can be passed with more facility than the notes of Gurney and Co., Stuckey and Co., the British Linen Company, or other well-lawing great establishments, none of which is Cash, except near the seat of issue,

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

A MERCHANT.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morking Herald.
To preserve peace, be prepared for war.
Gentlemes,—I remember having with much satisfaction perused your pithy and clear-sighted article on the rejection of the Volunteer Corp. Bill, which appeared in your issue of the 26th November last. The rejection of this Bill was a piece of absurdity and stupidity mixed (and I almost suspect that qualities of mind even less excusable may have actuated some of the hon, members of our legislative body)—a Bill so wisely offered to them by the Hon, the Colonial Secretary, to enable the Colonial Government to raise two corps of volunteer soldiers, one to be a rifle and artillery corps, and the other a cavalry corps (probably mounted rifles). It was evident to any ordinary judgment that the opposition speakers on the Bill were ignorant of the subject on which they spoke, and were not induced, by a proper sense of duty to their constituents, to permit those who did understand the whole subject thoroughly to carry out the wise and states-smallke suspension which the Bill contained. and which was so ally explained by the hon.
mover, and which, besides, was very probably responded to by at least four-fifths of the whole mover, and which, besides, was very probably responded to by at least four-fifths of the whole community, for whose (the Sydney community in particular) ultimate security and protection, the nucleus of a colonial army was as proposed to be established.

My thoughts often revert to the subject; and this day, on reading in this morning's Herald your London correspondent's letter of the 20th October, I am again struck with the wise and provident spirit of the British Legislature, as contrasted -ith the miserably unwise and silly belaxiour of our colonial body of obstruction-ists. I refer to the passage at the end of your correspondent's letter, which says—" Here ware close upon a resuccitation of the French Empire. Louis Napoleon says it will be an empire of peace, but the decision will finally rest with his half million of soldiers. Meanwhile we are quietly making our preparations against the conturgencies of war."

I am inclined to the opinion that a man who believes and asserts that, with all our reputed wealth, we shall not be in danger of invasion equaly with Great Britain, must be even worse than ignorant.

I remain, Gentlemen, yours, ac.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morsing Herald.
GENTIEMEN. But for your paragraph of to-day "Degs." I should have made application to that active, and (as I conceived until eight o'clock this morning) useful functionary, Mr.
Richard Stubbe, touching a dead dog, which is poisoning the air of Euzabeth-atreet North.
The point taken by Mr. Stubbs, if I understana it, is, that his business is not to "remove" but to inspect nuisances. Be it so.
Then, however, his duty according to Walker is, closely and narrowely to surecy this dead dog, to cartuet a prying examination of it, carefully to preside over it. I can only say that while I and my neighbours have passed at all hours of the day for the last three days I have never heard of Mr. Stubbs sitting even near the stink, and that I would far rather add a few shillings to the City rates to pay some labourer for quietly walking away with such affairs (taking cats in his way) than that Mr. Stubbs should literally perform the other portion of his duty, by making a post mortem under my windows—laspector of Nuisances! Stubbs objection is good.

Title—A grant from the Crown to the vendors.

The auctioneers, in submitting this first-rate property to the notice of the public, feel it unnecessary to give more than an outline of the lots, which alone will be sufficient to fix the attention of the capitalist, for the great difficulty of investing money to advantage, coupled with the large increase of capital to arrive from the mother-country in connexion with the establishment of new banks, and various other schemes in embryo for the employment of enormous sums of money in the colony, ensure not only the permanency of present rates, but guarantees an increasing value to city property.

The exorbitant price of the little vacant land to be found in the city, and the high price of building materials at this time, have put almost an entire stop to building, therefore this chance of obtaining a first-rate freehold house property is particularly attractive, the return consider of obtaining a mist-rate freehold house property is particularly attractive, the return for the outlay being a certainty free of risk, and offering inducements to the purchaser far superior to placing money in the best matured speculations in the monetary world.
